

Photo Cubicle Rentals - Recommendations to Great Your Knowledge

1. Placement. The placement of one's photobooth is extremely important. Try to set it down in a highly visible area near the action. The perfect spot is alongside the bar and/or dance floor. Also, ensure that the place of one's photobooth is somehow lit, so it's not placed at night corner of the room. People exiting the photobooth should enjoy their prints and being able to see and sign your guest book/scrapbook. Being available of photo booth rentals for a long time we surely got to see the raw emotions of happiness people laughing aloud, waiting anxiously by the print/scrapbook station, gathering in groups to judge their latest adventure in the photobooth and then having a good time decorating a scrapbook.

2. Size really matters. As opposed to a small old fashion photo "box" that fits only 2-3 people, rent an expert photobooth designed for large groups. It certainly makes the difference. It's so much fun to view 20 of one's guests squeal with excitement as they pile right into a booth. The more the merrier!

3. Announcements/reminders. Make sure you let your guests find out about a photobooth, its location and that it's available for them at no cost. Ask your DJ or MC to make announcements about your photo booth through the night. Place table cards featuring information about it; provide an email at the area setting.

4. Use of props. Want to actually add spice to your photo booth rental? Props are a must have for weddings, corporate parties, bar/bat mitzvahs, dance parties, quinceaneras, holiday parties, graduations, proms, family reunions, fundraisers and other events because of the fun they encourage. Many photobooth rental companies offer props for one more cost or include them within their packages. You can also bring your own personal props. Here are a few ideas: goofy glasses, pirate props, including a parrot, spyglass, eye patches, gold pieces, an earring, knight props, a blade, a shield, a helmet, king and queen crowns, smiles on a stay, mustaches on a stay, glasses with mustaches, noses, and eyebrows, an explorer's hat, a business hat, a development worker's hat, clown noses, several different wigs, boas, air blown toys and musical instruments, frames, signs, chalkboard speech bubbles, feather fans, fancy hats, angel wings, devil pitchfork, animal ears, noses, tails and much more.

5. External monitor. Find a business that provides an additional monitor playing a slide show of the pictures taken in the photobooth. It usually attracts a crowd and is a big success with the guests, creating hilarious moments and giving them ideas for posing.
